The federal state of Baden-Wuerttemberg is located in southwest Germany and is one of the strongest economies and most competitive regions in Europe. The labour market is stable and the demand for skilled workers in various branches remains high.

Not only the natural landscape of Germany's largest mountain range is unique, but also the regions and cities that comprise the Black Forest. Besides Karlsruhe and Pforzheim in the North, Freiburg on the French border as well as Waldshut on the Swiss border belong to the popular holiday area, which is considered "Germany's most beautiful Genießerecke".
